

Being I am a mother of two boys ages 5 and 7, I am unable to attend the much needed hearing. I know it is difficult to draw lines on what should be allowed to air publically with the 1st ammendment. We would be a country and are slowly getting there without morals if boundaries are not established. Just as a parent raises a child with boundaries, just as there are rules to every game so should our government establish rules and boundaries. I am not a conservative but with the laxness of our policies and procedures many progressive, intelligent thinkers are withdrawing from any source of public education and communications for fear of manipulation and demoralization of the truth. My children do not even watch public TV or listen to the radio nor do I. It is degrading to anyone's intelligence or creative thinking. Laws are made to be rewritten according to public demand. It is time for the government to listen to the cry of its nation. We need to create a sacred space for the children of this country in order that they may rise to be moralistic, creative, valued human beings instead of being used as a disposable market. Our priorities as a nation need to be reaccessed. If we put the safety and security of our children first, just as a mother does, those children will value and nurture us. They will build this nation up, caring deeply about its existence and future. Our priorities are narrow-minded and short-sited. We need to slay/tame the dragons and exploit the monsters from the closet, or they will devour us through demoralization. Please hear our cry.

Sincerely,
Belinda Icenhower, ND
